Oskar Kawecki, Altkom Akademia

Language: English

Do you know that half of the S&P 500 companies will be replaced in the next decade? What is the reason behind the upcoming revolution?

Tech giants like Amazon driven by their customer obsession have already mastered fast delivery at scale. Now they are expanding to traditional businesses. Using their experience they are mastering them faster than world's established companies are mastering software delivery. Modern organizations that manage delivery as projects instead of products using tools, frameworks and managerial principles from the past technological revolutions cannot expect those approaches to be adequate in the Age of Software. Every business is a software business now and every business is currently affected by digital disruption. The way we think about our clients and our products needs to change quickly if we want to survive the next 10 years.
